Project Report Guidelines

During the last two days of the class (5/6/08 and 5/8/08) I will ask each team to present a summary of their project. It is informal (no points assigned to it). I will schedule 3-4 presentations on each day. If there is a demo of something, then let everyone know.

The project report should read like a conference paper, and will have a length of 10-12 pages (10 pt font) excluding the cover page. It should contain

1. A cover page with the title and the names of the team members
2. A section on the objective of the project
3. A project description containing the detailed methods used, how you tested it, the results obtained, graphs, tables etc. It should contain a pointer pointing to your webpage containing the codes and other details. You should do justice to the fact that the project is worth 30% of the final grade
4. Analysis of the results, if appropriate, along with what went wrong and lessons learned.
5. A list of references in the proper format

In case of any doubt, I may ask for a clarification from any member of the team
